

Please join Oscar-winning filmmaker Vanessa Roth, Nínive Calegari and Dave Eggers for a preview of THE TEACHER SALARY PROJECT, their upcoming film about America's teaching force.

Based on the New York Times best seller Teachers Have it Easy: The Big Sacrifices and Small Salaries of America's Teachers, the film uses teachers' and students' first-hand stories to engage the American people, showing how teachers' salaries affect the caliber, ability, capacity, and strength of our teaching force and the success of our students.

The evening will feature clips from the upcoming film and a short discussion with the director and producers. Ichi Catering will provide sushi.

MARCH 23, 2009
6:30-8:30

INTERSECTION FOR THE ARTS
446 VALENCIA STREET
BETWEEN 14TH AND 15TH

Minimum donation requested: $150.
Host committee: Nínive & Bruce Dorhmann,
Yosh Han, Tiffany Shlain & Ken Goldberg,
Louise Grotenhuis, Jonathan Dearman,
Meleana Leaverton, Ellen Reeves

Please respond by the 10th of March to Jessi Misslin: jessi@theteachersalaryproject.org

The purpose of THE TEACHER SALARY PROJECT is simple: to honor teachers and to demonstrate that they are critical to the viability of our democracy. Forty-six percent of American teachers leave within their first five years because of poor conditions and because they cannot afford to teach. Raising teachers' salaries will allow us to attract and retain the best possible teaching force.